Nurse's Boy Friend Alarms Suspicious Stranger At Home
If the boy friend of one of the nurses at the Jared Sidney Torrance Memorial hospital hadn't called at the nurses' home Monday night there is no telling what might have happened. The young man's sudden appearance while a strange man was in the house, making a pretense of thumping through a telephone directory, looking for "a Mr. Marshall in Torrance," put the burly stranger to rout, according to information received by the Herald.

The stranger had called once before asking for "Marshall" and looking ugly, according to other nurses who were preparing to go for a beach party. He was informed that the house was the nurses' home and left. Later he returned when the one nurse was at home writing while her boy friend was reading in the reception room.

That the man's actions were suspicious was shown when he tried to find "Marshall" in the San Pedro phone directory. On being informed by the visiting young man of his mistake and asked his business, the stranger fled down the walk and into the street. The nurses are determined to call the police the next time the strange man appears in the vicinity.

Williams in jig time after Officer Norton parked his motorcycle outside and entered with his Bible.
